

Where can I find information on recent developments in anti-discrimination law?

Answer:

Austlii

Good source for recent cases. A publicly accessible site produced by the Australasian Legal Information Institute (a joint facility of UTS and UNSW). It contains cases from most jurisdictions. Updated daily.

Factiva

Newspapers are often a good source of recent information.

Legal Online: Australian Legal Monthly Digest

Listing and summary of recent cases and legislation by subject. Updates the Australian Digest.

TIP:

- Click Lawbook Online
- Click Australian Legal Monthly Digest
- Select appropriate search
- Decode the abbreviations and use Journal Search and Catalogue to look up the title of the law report series for the fulltext of the case.

LexisNexis AU: Australian Current Law

A current awareness resource providing access to recent development by subject. Updates Halsbury's Laws of Australia. Includes unreported cases.

TIP:

- From the Library homepage
- Click Databases>Law> LexisNexis AU
- Under Cases/legislation click Australian Current Law

Relevant board and tribunal web pages as outlined in answer above.
