

Q2: Where will I find OH&S legislation?

Answer:

2a. There are a number of resources to use for identifying and accessing the full text of legislation. We recommend you try LAWLEX first as the most up-to-date source.

LAWLEX (UOW students and staff only)

LAWLEX provides access to the full text of legislation for all Australian jurisdictions. It refers you to the most authoritative database for each jurisdiction. For more information on how to use LAWLEX see LAWLEX database tips.

TIP:

1. Select Click here to continue as the University of Wollongong Research User
2. Click Search Legislation
3. Type in name of Act
4. Select appropriate jurisdiction
5. Click on the title of the Act (Core Document Homepage) to view document
6. Click User Guides on task bar for more tips

2b. LexisNexis AU: Occupational Health and Safety Law NSW (UOW students and staff only)

This is a looseleaf service that annotates each section of the Acts with commentary.

1. Scroll down list of 'My Sources' in right hand frame
2. Click browse next to "Employment and Industrial Law"
3. Click on the title "Occupational Health and Safety Law NSW"
4. Enter search terms in Quick Find OR click on the '+' next to the OH&S Act, to browse
5. Click View Tutorials (bottom of left hand frame) for graphic and interactive "How to" information or use the "How do I?" links in the left hand frame for textual help.

2c. CCH Online: OH&S Legislation (UOW students and staff only)

Legislation is arranged by Australian jurisdiction.

TIP:

1. Scroll to and click CCH Online
2. Click OH&S Library
3. Click OHS Legislation
4. Enter terms in search box or click on the '+' to browse particular jurisdictions
5. Click Tutorial in the top right corner of the screen and then click Tutorials for "How to" information. These videos are not on the topic of OH&S but try the Searching for Keywords options.